By MARC CAMOLETTI, translated by BEVERLEY CROSS

Directed by David Nelson

The season will run from November 15 – 30, 2013.

Playlovers upcoming production Boeing Boeing is set to soar with a slip stream of laughter this November.

Set in the sexy, sassy sixties, Boeing Boeing takes flight when the suave, swinging, single Bernard finds his life has just become very complicated due to a bout of bad weather. You see, Bernard is engaged to three air stewardesses, which is usually fine and dandy as he is a wiz at juggling his lady loves' schedules. As a storm moves in and the planes are grounded, turbulence of a different sort is about to strike. One by one the women arrive back home and Bernard is thrown into a whirlwind of trouble. Bernard scrambles to keep the ladies from crossing paths, assisted by his houseguest Robert and his no-nonsense maid Bertha.

Strap yourself in as Boeing Boeing ensues a nostalgic ride up a super groovy comedic flight of mayhem and madness.

Boeing Boeing runs from the 15th November to 30th November, for three weekends. Sunday 24th November is a matinee with High Tea.

CURTAINS

Another successful production well received

Playlovers' recently completed production, Curtains, the "whodunit musical" directed by Kristen Twynam-Perkins, has been enjoyed by all those who came to see it. There were a number of full houses during the season, which adds so much to the atmosphere

The review on the Theatre Association website, written on one of the full house nights by Richard Hyde, includes such comments as :

"a rollicking, entertaining ride that is flat out enjoyable from start to finish"

"This is a big, bold, sassy musical with great songs, big set pieces and is genuinely funny "

"the whole cast [...] were uniformly excellent "

"The set is simple but effective. The costumes are great"

"choreography took total advantage of the large space"

The full review can still be seen at http://www.theatre.asn.au/theatre_reviews/curtains_at_playlovers

In addition to the publically posted review, we were delighted that some patrons so enjoyed the show, they were inspired to send us personal emails, with comments

"Enjoyed and appreciated every minute."

"I want to congratulate all the cast, musicians and crew for a wonderful night's entertainment what a show!"

Well done, Stephanie

Stephanie Shaw, daughter of longtime Playlovers member Kimberley Shaw, recently had a successful season as Jemima in the production of Chitty Chitty Bang Bang which ran for a month at Crown Theatre.

Stephanie, now 12 years old, made her theatrical debut at the age of 4. Since then she has appeared in several Community Theatre productions, including both the productions of her sister Elisabeth in YouthFest, Evacuees in 2012 and Izzy Icarus Fell Off the World in 2013.

Electrical Problems at Hackett Hall

Earlier this year Nedlands Council informed Playlovers that electrical work was required to bring the hall up to regulation standard. Tony Ridout engaged an electrical contractor, and, between them, they planned to do it all in the school holidays when the hall was relatively free from other users.

Unfortunately, when the work began, they discovered that due to years of neglect by the council, the electrical infrastructure was a mess.

In summary, required RCD's (Residual Current Devices) were installed and when switched on, immediately tripped and were unable to relatch - as should happen when a power leakage is detected. As a result, there have been no lights for a couple of weeks. A search for the fault found aged wiring, faulty fluorescent lights and a multitude of other problems.

Over the weekend of 19-20 Oct, Wally Fry, with several other non-technical committee members, assisted with the installation of equipment, and John Woolrych installed interim lighting measures.

Work will resume Monday 27th and it is expected that all major issues will be resolved then and schedules set for the tidying up of minor issues. Our thanks also to the contractor, Ian Ashton, who has pulled out all the stops to keep the cost down.
